GDSN Major Release 3.1 has been deployed

In May 2016 GS1 global standard for trade item information was upgraded (new version GDSN Major Release 3.1.1) and Prevas GCM has been upgraded to the new standard at the same time.

Information about Prevas GCM after upgrade of Major Release

Changes in Prevas GCM after Major Release

Major Release is primarily a change in how article information technically is structured and stored in database as well as format of the XML files with Trade Item information sent between Prevas GCM and receivers via Validoo Item.

These changes still make a major impact on functions and trade item information, and users may need to spend some time to orient themselves in the new version of the system.

Prevas will continue to develop Prevas GCM, so the system become more user-friendly. We have received some comments and suggestions from users and would appreciate more through contact with the support. With each new release, we look through suggestions and try to implement some of them.

Validation of trade item information in Prevas GCM

After deployment of Major Release validation of trade item information is changed. There are both Swedish and GDSN (international) validation rules. They are available on the GS1 website:

<http://www.gs1.se/en/our-standards/Technical-documentation/trade-item-information/>

In Prevas GCM, Swedish validation rules and a selection of GDSN rules are implemented. Unfortunately we have been forced to turn of a number of rules that did not work. This means that trade item information becomes clear marked in Prevas GCM and get validation error when sending trade information further via Validoo Item. To check validation of your trade item, you can send trade item information to Validoo Test Receiver to begin with. But trade item information will always be validated in Validoo Item regardless of which receiver you send trade item information to.

Since there are both Swedish and GDSN validation rules bug reports can be both in Swedish and English. It can be hard to understand what validation errors means because of this but you can always contact Prevas GCM support for help.

Prevas will work to improve validations in Prevas GCM and will implement and complete validation rules for the most common validation errors in an update release that is scheduled to be deployed in September 2016.

Planned releases in autumn 2016

Prevas is planning an update release in September 2016, including completion and corrections of validation rules.

GS1 is also planning to release a new version of Trade Item Information in November 2016.
