Prevas growing in management consulting, signing LOI for company acquisition

Prevas has signed a letter of intent (LOI) to acquire Rhemispheres AB. The company offers advisory IT consulting services to companies and organizations active in the energy sector, which strengthens Prevas' newly established Management Consulting business area.

Rhemispheres concentrates on one specific area: how energy impacts companies, cities, organizations and entire infrastructures. EON, Fortum and TetraPak are some of the company's customers. The company has offices in Stockholm, Gothenburg and Malmö, and has 20 employees.

"We have a very versatile service offering within management consulting, and can, for example, offer workshops, strategy work and preliminary studies to many different industries. However, the objective is always the same – to create innovative growth for our customers. Rhemispheres fits into Prevas' structure very well and reinforces our presence with energy companies," says Mats Lundberg, CEO at Prevas.

In order to take part and find solutions for energy issues in the future, Rhemispheres has associated itself with specialist advisors who represent a mixture of different competencies. Advisors are organized into clear teams of experts who provide innovative services.

"Prevas' corporate culture and strategy are very similar to our own, which should make for a smooth integration process. We are looking forward to being a part of Prevas, and together we can work towards strong development," says Tobias Kristoffersen, CEO of Rhemispheres.
